COMMUNITY SCHOOL FOR DANCE

THE COMMUNITY SCHOOL OF DANCE is a recreational program outlined for dancers of every age. The Toddler & Me class begins at age 18 months while the Ballroom classes keep us all dancing into the future. This program promotes exploratory dance lessons using movement for expression, wellness, learning academics, and fitness. It also provides dance lessons for those who are not old enough or cannot make the time commitment required of the Pre-Professional School. The Community School uses the same dance faculty and syllabi as the Pre-Professional School. The Community School consists of four levels (1-4).

CHILDREN'S DANCE: CONTEMPORARY

January 22 – April 13 (12 Weeks)

Spring Dance Concert Performance Sat., Apr. 13

THIS MODERN DANCE COURSE will highlight the modern dance techniques developed by Martha Graham, Merce Cunningham, José Limón, and Jennifer Muller. These techniques are divided among various physical extremes: fall and recovery, rebound, weight, suspension, and isolation. These ideas can be illustrated in the way a dancer uses the floor as a place from which to rise, return to, and then rise from again. The way a dancer explores the range of movement between the one extreme of freedom from gravity and the other of falling into it.

PRE-PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL OF DANCE

THE PRE-PROFESSIONAL SCHOOL OF DANCE consists of four levels (A-D). Students are evaluated individually and placed into the level where they will benefit most. Classes consist of ballet, pointe, contemporary, stretch, leap, variations, and master classes. Performing opportunities give students the chance to develop their artistic and technical skills. Wayne Center for the Arts presents three sessions of performance a year, a biennial Nutcracker, and additional local performance opportunities throughout the year.

Students wishing to participate in the Wayne Center Ballet Company must take all ballet technique classes and either pointe or pre-pointe within their level and levels B, C, and D an additional contemporary class. This is necessary for the effective cross-training of dancers. The tuition listed reflects the total cost for all classes in each level. Students may also take unlimited classes below their level at no additional charge. Placement is required for registration into these levels. To be placed in a pre-professional class, please contact Kimberly Payne, Dance Program Coordinator at 330-264-2787 X217.
